

TheCloud Networking Services: end-to-end connectivity solutions

Networking and connectivity are equally important as hosted services. Without the right networking solution, business communications cannot function optimally. At TheCloud we pride ourselves on our ability to enable you to offer customers a complete end-to-end network solution.

Without a resilient and secure network dedicated bandwidth, advanced web applications, server infrastructures and virtualised environments are at risk. We offer a range of network solutions so you can guarantee maximum business uptime.

Connectivity

We are able to provide you with the support to resell business grade ADSL; Ethernet First Mile (EFM); copper based leased lines; Ethernet based fibre circuits; point-to-point LAN extensions; radio connections and laser links.

LAN

From a business perspective, there are security, productivity, cost saving and flexibility benefits to be gained from implementing a LAN with your customers' current and future business needs in mind. Using our troubleshooting tools, TheCloud can help you present the best possible option for increasing your customers' network speeds.

We also offer a range of LAN management services. Accurate management and monitoring of large LAN infrastructures can often be time consuming however, by out-sourcing the process your customers can free up their IT department for more important business critical activities.

MPLS and VPLS

TheCloud MPLS network (Multi Protocol Label Switching) is a managed wide area networking solution for multi-site businesses. It provides your customers with secure, private networking on a resilient core network, which enables simplification of network architecture combined with improved business processes and efficiencies.

VPLS (Virtual Private LAN Service) is one of the services offered over our managed MPLS network. VPLS is an Ethernet based point-to-multipoint layer 2 VPN service that allows businesses to connect multiple Ethernet LANs into a single network.
